Dear Cincinnati State Student,

For Summer Semester 2020, Cincinnati State will offer all classes via remote learning. This means that in some cases, courses you had planned to take in Summer will not be available. However, many courses are still available, in one of three remote learning formats:

- Web (WEB code when you register). Courses are 100% online to give you flexibility to complete coursework at times your schedule permits. You need a computer and the internet but would not be required to use live audio and video streaming.

- Live Web (LIVW code when you register). Courses are 100% online with extensive required "real time" participation using live web-conferencing such as Blackboard Collaborate. You need high speed internet and a computer capable of supporting live audio and video streaming.

- Web Hybrid – (WHYB code when you register) - Courses are 100% online, with occasional required "real time" participation using live web-conferencing such as Blackboard Collaborate. You need high speed internet and a computer capable of supporting live audio and video.

Many Summer classes will be offered on a 10-week schedule, with classes starting Monday, June 1, and ending Saturday, August 8. Some classes will be offered on a 15-week schedule.
- If you have already registered for Summer classes, you'll be getting more information (via Cincinnati State email) about any changes that affect your classes.
- If you have not yet registered for Summer classes, please take a look at the Summer schedule, and then register for classes online in the usual way.

If you need more information about staying on track in your degree or certificate classes, please reach out to your advisor or program chair.

If you would like some help getting ready for Summer remote classes, consider enrolling in Cincinnati State's Online Orientation Workshop.
